TIME TO PICK COLORS

PROJECT ARCHITECTS George Crandall (left) and Don Arambula paint test strips on the Union Street overpass in The Dalles to help city officials select colors. The portal linking downtown The Dalles with the Columbia River includes a riverside pavilion (above), and interior lighted walls. The year-long project is scheduled for completion in September. One base color, "Jericho Brown," (visible in the center at left) has been selected. Two complementary colors (not shown at top and bottom here) have also been selected, and have been applied to the structure.
